Long's Machine Now Rudderless In A Whirlpool

None of His Half Dozen Lieutenants Can Fill Chair He Left Vacant

By The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS Sept 10—The death of Sen Huey P Long at the hands of an assassin has left his powerful political machine rudderless Politically Louisiana was in a turmoil today It had no direction

The king is dead but there was no king left to long live When Huey Long passed from the political stage he left a half dozen political leaders of about equal stripe None overshadowed the other If one tried to step ahead of the other there was danger of internecine warfare

Normally the high man would be Gov O K Allen but during his entire political career he has leaned heavily on Huey Long who was a friend from the barefoot boy stage in Winn parish Today Gov Allen was so broken up over his friend's death that he was unapproachable

Before Long's death but after it was known that he would die his political lieutenants held conferences on what steps to take In them were Gov Allen Seymour Weiss Long political treasurer Abe Shushan director of the Orleans levee board Lieut Gov James A Noe Allen Ellender speaker of the house George Wal

FIRST GAME ON NEW GRID FIELD

School Athletic Officials Decide To Play Game Saturday at New Stadium

TIFFIN TEAM OPPOSITION

Proposal To Install Lights for Night Games Also Under Consideration

BY CHUCK DENSMORE
Marion Star Sports Editor

Harding High school's first 1935 football game in the new deal for the gridiron sport in Marion will be played at the new Harding High stadium in the southeast section of the city

Decision to play the game on the new athletic field was made at a meeting of the Harding High school athletic board at the school building last night The field was to be lined off and goal posts erected today it was announced

The first game for the Presidents will bring a strong Tiffin Calvert eleven to Marion Saturday afternoon The Tiffin Calvert team handed Harding a severe defeat last year and the Presidents hope to start the new deal with a victory by upsetting one of its last year's conquerors

Bleachers will be moved to the new stadium within a day or two and placed on the side of the field opposite the concrete stands now being erected One section of the stands is virtually completed but probably will not be used Saturday it was said

Delay in obtaining materials for the project has prevented pouring the second section of the stands Supt C A Hudson said this morning It is planned to rush completion of the stands for use in a part of the home games scheduled this season A turf equal to that on any athletic field in the state will be available for the first game

Prospects of installing lights for games this season loomed brighter following the athletic board meeting A committee composed of Ervin H Shade Dewey N Pohyer and George Wilson of the Harding teaching staff was appointed to study the lighting problem for the new field and obtain estimates of costs

If lights are installed for a part of the home games this season they will be played on Saturday nights Principal K H Marshall said this morning The installing of lights will be a self liquidating project with the receipts from games to pay for installation and maintenance Tax payers will not be called upon to carry the cost of a lighting system he said

Lights will be used to meet the competition of college games on Saturdays and enable more Marion business people to attend the home attractions The lights won't be used for late season games because of cold weather it is believed

Tickets for the opening game were being printed today and will go on sale tomorrow A selling campaign will be conducted within the school and tickets will be available from high school pupils and at the gates Saturday afternoon A organized citywide selling campaign is planned for a later date Plans for a dedication game are held up pending completion of the stadium project, Mr Marshall said

The new Athletic field can be reached through Walnut, Willow, Bradford and Powhatan streets, which in turn can be reached off Mt. Vernon Vine, Lafayette and Franklin streets. A large opening game crowd is anticipated for the first encounter on the new field, by school officials.

SCHOOL BOARD BEGINS DRIVE FOR TAX LEVY

Second Renewal of Three Mills for Operating Purposes Sought

FIRST VOTED IN 1925

Officials Point Out Passage Will Not Mean Increase in Taxes

The city board of education unlimbered its guns last night in preparation for an intensive campaign to renew the three-mill tax levy at the November election

The board also hired three new teachers who will take their posts in the city schools immediately It was decided to grant all school pupils a half holiday Friday afternoon to attend the Marion county fair

Preliminary arrangements to carry the drive for the tax levy to voters were made and immediate step will be taken to carry them out Provided the levy carries this will be its second renewal a vote to renew it being necessary every five years The levy was first passed in 1925 and was re-enacted in 1930 It will provide schools here with one of three needed sources of revenue

To Form Committee

Preliminary arrangements discussed last night call for the formation of a citizens committee composed of members of various civic organizations and clubs which will carry the main burden of the campaign to stress to voters what was described as the dire need for funds the levy provides

The aid of the 14 Parent Teachers association clubs in the city will be sought and their presidents will be called in to confer with School Superintendent C A Hudson within the next few days The clubs will be asked to devote their first September meeting and one next month to a discussion of the levy and ways and means of promoting the appeal to voters A corps of speakers will be lined up in the near future to carry the message to voters

It is expected also that the service clubs in the city will devote one of their early meetings to a discussion of the levy It was decided to prepare printed material listing the pertinent facts of the tax program

Mr Hudson pointed out that those engaged in the drive should stress the fact that re-enactment of the three mill levy will not mean an increase in taxes since the schools merely are asking for a continuation of what they have been getting and not additional funds

Provided the levy carries the schools will have three sources of revenue (1) funds provided by the school foundation program adopted at the last session of the state legislature (2) school share of the 10 mill levy on the current tax duplicate (3) and the three-mill levy

Mr Hudson again pointed out the need for the funds the three mill levy would provide There is

State Halts Payments of Pensions to its Aged

Funds Exhausted and Only About Half of Beneficiaries Will Receive August Checks.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS O Sept 10—Ohio halted today payments of old age pensions to 81 058 aged with 2 000 waiting for their August checks

Gov Davey said he would not call an immediate special session to provide pension funds

The aid for the aged bureau of the auditor of state's offices reported that available funds for pensions were exhausted Monday afternoon

Unpaid August pensions total $337 293 The auditor called a halt to the mailing of checks when his assistants reached names beginning with the letter H in Muskingum county

Checks already written will go forward Checks for the other pension beneficiaries will be written but will be withheld from the mails until the legislature provides additional funds

More than $2 000 000 in profits of the state liquor monopoly system lie idle in the treasurer of state's office Under a new liquor law that became effective last Thursday, this money is set aside for old age pensions but it cannot be released until the legislature specifically appropriates it for the purpose

The new law set aside all profits of the liquor monopoly for pensions but the $2 000 000 in surplus accumulated before the amended liquor law went into effect.

The special legislative session will consider a means of providing the state's share of $24 000,000 state welfare institution building program and revision of the 1935 36 state budget Gov Davey has applied to the federal public works administration for a grant of 45 per cent of the building total and a loan of the other 55 per cent.

Another state department felt the pinch of curtailed revenue C E Black, superintendent of the Ohio gasoline tax division said his department had exhausted all of its stamp fund He sought to borrow money to provide stamps for 2 000 pieces of mail

Gov Davey, in slashing $8,800,000 from the biennial budget as approved by the general assembly, deleted an item of $5,500 for postage stamps from Black's department The special session is expected to reapportion the 000,000 left after the vetoes

"We bring in approximately $42,000,000 yearly," Black moaned, "and now he haven't enough postage stamps to answer inquiries from our 00,000 applicants. I don't know what we're going to do."

OPERATION AND 5 TRANSFUSIONS OF NO AVAIL TO VICTIM

Oxygen Also Administered in Futile Attempt To Save His Life; Shot Pierced Colon and Kidney.

(Copyright 1935, By The Associated Press)

BATON ROUGE La Sept 10—United States Sen Huey P Long known the world over as the dictator of his native Louisiana died today of a wound inflicted by an assassin

Physicians battled for 31 hours to save the political chieftain's life They performed one operation, five blood transfusions and administered artificial oxygen to no avail Death came at 4 06 a m, Central Standard time (5 06 Marion time)

His Widow Led Away

The widow was led dry-eyed from Our Lady of the Lake hospital She had been at the bedside in constant vigil since Sunday night

"A gunshot wound in the abdomen" was officially given as the cause of the senator's death by Dr E L Sanderson who said there were "not necessarily" any complications

Dr G S Long a brother of the senator, was quoted as saying, however, that the bullet which entered the right side puncturing the colon in two places also penetrated the kidney The senator was 42 years old

The gunshot wound was inflicted by Dr Carl A Weiss Jr kinsman of a Long political enemy in the corridor of the Louisiana state capitol at 9 20 p m Sunday night

Demand Investigation

Even before his death there were demands for a full investigation of the fatal shooting In Washington Rep Lenerty Republican of Pennsylvania declared

The congressional committee which is about to investigate Sen Long's activities in Louisiana might also investigate who it was who instigated his attempted murder

Gov Oscar K Allen said "We are going to follow the principles of Huey P Long"

The senator had just stepped from the house chamber after pushing toward completion a number of special session acts aimed at the federal administration and toward consolidating his already almost unbelievable personal control of the state's affairs

Dr Weiss a 30 year old eye ear nose and throat specialist pressed a gun into the senator's stomach and fired His arm was deflected before he could fire a second shot and Long's body guardsmen state highway policemen killed him on the spot with a fusillade of nearly 60 bullets Dr Weiss was buried yesterday

Aids Grief Stricken

The lieutenants of the Louisiana dictator were stunned momentarily and grief stricken by Long's death but were believed ready to attempt to carry on the powerful regime he established

On the other hand Long's political opponents were expected to make a strong fight against this effort and to try to gain control themselves

Senator Long became delirious at midnight last night and shortly later lost consciousness Earl J Christenberry his secretary said he exclaimed

"Where are my children?"

Can't Recognize Children

His children, Rose, Russell and Palmer Reid were rushed to his side, but too late for the senator to recognize them

The secretary said there were last wishes expressed by the senator He would not divulge them because he said they concerned the family and were private.

Mrs Jack Ducournau, a niece, gave another version of the senator's last act before he lost consciousness. He sent for Mrs. Long, who had left the room, she said, and as she walked in, he exclaimed: "Here comes my sweetheart. Where are all the children? I love all of you."

Gov. O. K. Allen, who was tearful as he emerged from the death chamber, said the senator wondered, "what will happen to my poor university boys". The senator made himself the particular patron of the football team of the University of Louisiana.

Fighting determinedly, Long told Seymour Weiss, a close friend and treasurer of the Long organization, at the bedside, "I want to live."

Kin and Friends at Bedside

At the bedside besides Mrs. Long and the children, Gov. Allen, and Christenberry, were the senator's sisters, Mrs. W. M. Knott and Mrs [illegible] and their husbands, his brothers, Dr. G. S. Long, Julius and Earl and the latter's wife; his HYDE PARK, N Y, Sept. 10—News of the death of Sen Long was received at the home of President Roosevelt without comment. The President, in a statement yesterday, deplored the use of violence in public affairs and expressed his regret at the shooting.

Group Set Up To Probe Long's Affairs Will Probably Investigate His Slaying.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept 10 Shock, sorrow and wonder about the political effect mingled in varying degrees today as the capital awoke to find that the assassin's bullet had cost Sen Huey P Long his life

The extraordinary nature of the man was illustrated The customary expressions of grief at the passing of a public figure were deferred as high and low first gave voice to their horror that gunfire had removed a national political figure

Rep Lenerty, Republican of Pennsylvania broached the possibility of a congressional inquiry into the slaying From Atlantic City he telephoned his office here before the death to say the house committee which already had planned investigation of the Long dictatorship in his state might also look into who it was who instigated the murder

All People Interested

On all sides there was tremendous interest in the latest details, Differences over Long himself, and these were many and deep, went unmentioned amidst recollections of his whimsical and boyish side

Within the administration and the Republican organization especially attempts to gauge the political effect were made

The consensus appeared to be that no politician now was in sight who could take the place made by the Louisianan for himself

Although new deal leaders had publicly not given much weight to Long's plans to attempt to wrest the presidential nomination from Roosevelt next June, and to run independently if failing, Republicans had welcomed his intentions on the theory that it might split the Democratic vote in November.

Sen. Smith, South Carolina Democrat, believed the "share-our-wealth" movement—as built by Long—would collapse without him. In 27 years as a senator, he said, "I've seen nobody there comparable with Long—and I don't mean solely in exhibitionism and buffoonery. He

X·70 USERS LAUGH AT CARBON

This Old-Time Bugaboo got its Final Licking Nearly 3 Years Ago when Standard Oil First Added Carbon Solvent to Sohio Gasolines!

To see how well Sohio's carbon solvent has done its work, a survey of X-70 users throughout Ohio has just been completed.

More than 115,600,000 miles of total driving experience is included in this study . . . and it showed that . . .

92 Per Cent of X-70 users interviewed have never had their cars in the shop for the sole purpose of carbon removal!

No wonder X-70 fans just laughed when our reporters asked if they had experienced carbon trouble.

STOP AT THE X-70 PUMP...and Stop Worrying About Carbon!

The carbon solvent used by Sohio is not a foreign or corrosive substance, but is a pure petroleum product and harmless to your motor. Use X-70 . . . forget about carbon troubles . . . and save money on the longer mileage in this triple-distilled gasoline.

READ THESE TYPICAL COMMENTS OF ENTHUSIASTIC X-70 USERS

". . put in new piston rings at 35,000, no carbon on head at all . ."

"Due to a leaky gasket, it was necessary to take the head off the car I have driven for 31,000 miles. No carbon was noticed, and the head was replaced without touching what little carbon was there..."

"Had carbon removed when I was using various brands of gas and oil. No carbon removed in over 20,000 miles now that I am sticking to Sohio gasolines..."

" . . Have used X-70 since it was introduced and have never been troubled from carbon."

"If I had it to do over I would not have had the valves ground at 60,000 miles as the car was running fine. All valves were seating and no carbon was present to bother in the least . . "

HERE'S WHAT MEN SAY WHO OPERATE FLEETS OF COMMERCIAL TRUCKS AND CARS

"We have not had any carbon removal in any of our equipment for the past several years . ."

"It is never necessary, with Sohio fuels and motor oils, to remove carbon from either cars or trucks other than when they are torn down for valve grind or other motor work..."

"On a unit which we overhauled last winter, motor had run 102,000 miles before it was torn down and the amount of carbon found in it at that time was not excessive..."

"Carbon removal, as a definite procedure, is not used on our present automotive equipment..."

Lack of House Saves Plane of Prospect Man

W H Herr Claims $500 Exemption in Attachment, Chooses Ship

The fact that William H. Herr of Prospect does not own a home saved him from losing ownership of his airplane attorneys said today as a levy made against Herr s plane by Sheriff Fred F Miller was released

Not owning a home Herr was entitled by law to claim a $500 exemption in the form of personal property of his own choosing in lieu of what the law describes as his homestead rights the attorneys explained He chose the airplane

Since Charles Whissel and Richard Barnhart of Marion appraisers of Herr s plane fixed its value at $450 the $500 exemption in lieu of homestead entitled Herr to prevent the plane from being sold

The levy was made two weeks ago by Sheriff Miller in a move by Harold Distlehorst of Columbus to attempt to collect a municipal court judgment of $86.25 he obtained against Herr a year ago Since that time Herr s plane was held at Marion airport with a sheriff s sign on it stating that it was held by the sheriff for sale to satisfy the judgment claim The sign was removed at noon yesterday and Herr is now free to move his plane

The sheriff s levy on the plane was the second effort made by Distlehorst to collect his judgment by having the plane seized Permitted to levy on it when it was in Union county a number of months ago but appraisers there fixed its value at $300 and Herr claimed exemptions that blocked the sale court records show

Distlehorst s only hope of collecting the account through holding the plane is to seek reappraisal of the plane at a figure sufficiently higher than $500 to take care of his claim Lewis E Francis attorney for Distlehorst said such a step probably will not be taken

Social Affairs

THE second annual summer dance sponsored as a benefit by the Women's Board of the Marion City Hospital last evening at Rainbow Gardens was all that the committee and members hoped it would be, a grand success.

While no official check will be available until all reports of the ticket sale are in, Miss Grace [illegible] Hard, ticket chairman, said the board is assured of a generous return. The board's semi-annual benefits, which have come to be established events on the city's social calendar, aid in financing the organization's activities at the city hospital. Proceeds of last evening's dance will be used to purchase hospital equipment.

The affair was a gala finale to the summer's activities and something of a farewell until the holiday season for the younger group whose members will be leaving for school during the next week or 10 days.

With the date for the summer benefit set much later than usual this year, it was of an experimental nature, and any misgivings which might have been in the minds of the members were quickly dispelled with the early arrival of many of the patrons and later on the large number of dinner party guests. When the evening got under way approximately 250 guests were dancing to the music played by Carl Deibe Perser and his [illegible] orchestra of Detroit, which has come to be a [illegible] here.

In addition to the dancers there was a generous sprinkling of patrons who came to hear the music and lend their presence to a worthy cause, and the orchestra played from 8 until 2 o'clock.

While no formal decorative arrangement was carried out, there were numerous baskets of gay fall flowers which added to the colorful decorations of the gardens, and a concession stand provided refreshments.

The following committee, named by Mrs. J. J. Sennan, the president of the board, was in charge of arrangements for the dance:

Mrs. Mabel Owens and Miss Emma O'Brien, general chairmen; Mrs. [illegible] Kreitz, music; Mrs. Frank [illegible], Mrs. [illegible] Syner, Mrs. Herman S. [illegible], Mrs. David King, Mrs. George G. Sco[illegible], Mrs. F. H. [illegible], Mrs. Daniel [illegible], Mrs. Carl Sawyer and Mrs. [illegible].

Among the [illegible] having dinner parties before the dance were Mr. and Mrs. David M. [illegible] of West Center street, who entertained for the pleasure of their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Jerrold [illegible] of Burlington, Ky., and [illegible] Francis J. Huber of 721 Mt. Vernon avenue.

Among the junior hostesses was Miss Mary Guthrie, who entertained at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Guthrie of South Prospect street. Her guests included Misses Dorothy Roberts, Della [illegible], Betty [illegible], Anson Lucille Prather and Betty Stauffer, Don Williamson, Harry Alspach, Robert [illegible], Fred Ulrich, Merchant, John Guthrie and Keith Maloney.

Guests from out of the city in attendance at the dance included Mr. and Mrs. Caines of Burlington, Ky., Mrs. Frank Carpenter of Findlay and Mrs. Henry R. Schaffner and daughter, Barbara Ann of Canton.

ARRANGEMENTS are being completed by Mrs. Howard A. Mapes, chairman, and members of her committee for the weekly party Thursday at the Marion Country club. Assisting committee women are Mrs. J. H. Walters, Mrs. Roscoe D. Mezger, Mrs. J. Malcolm Streitz, Miss Emma O'Brien and Mrs. M. J. O'Connell. Golf and bridge are scheduled for 11 o'clock and luncheon will be at 1 o'clock.

Announcement of Busic and Allen Wedding Is Made

ANNOUNCEMENT was made here today of the marriage of Miss Cornelia Elizabeth Busick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adrian P. Busick of Washington, D. C., and McLean, Va., to Gilman Baker Allen of Cleveland, son of the late Tracy P. Allen and Mrs. Allen of 250 Franklin street, which was solemnized in St. John's Episcopal church at McLean Tuesday, Sept. 3. The ceremony was read by Rev. John G. Bedler at 4 o'clock.

White roses, hydrangeas and baby's breath intermingled with palms and ferns decorated the church and the chancel was lighted with tall white tapers.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. She wore a white satin wedding gown fashioned on princess lines with dolman sleeves. The fitted bodice was finished with a draped neckline and fastened down the back with a row of tiny covered buttons. Her veil of tulle was caught into a cap effect with a coronet of Rose Point lace and orange blossoms which were worn by the bridegroom's grandmother. Her shower bouquet was of bride's roses and lilies of the valley and her only ornament was a diamond sunburst, a gift of the bridegroom, which was an heirloom of his family.

Mrs. Harry S. Abell of McLean was the matron of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Louise Du Pont of Washington and Miss Dorothy Partlick of Gaithersburg, Md. Mrs. Abell wore a costume of deep peach net over taffeta and her hat of peach tulle had a narrow ruffle trim. Her flowers were an arm bouquet of peach gladioli, blue delphinium, pastel shaded daisies tied with wide green satin ribbon. The bridesmaids wore gowns of pale green net over taffeta with hats of matching shades. Their bouquets were pastel-shaded gladioli, daisies and baby's breath.

Loren Allen of New York City, a cousin of the bridegroom, was the best man instead of the bridegroom's brother, Fred J. Allen of Marion, who was unable to attend because of his father's illness. Adrian P. Busick Jr. of Marion and Richard A. Scott of New York City were ushers.

A reception at the Washington Golf and Country club followed the ceremony. Receiving with the bride and bridegroom and their attendants were the bride's mother and her two sisters-in-law, Mrs. Adrian P. Busick Jr. of Marion and Mrs. John Rust Busick of Falls Church, Va.

Unfit for Work

In view of the frantic effort being made to transfer direct relief beneficiaries to work relief rolls special interest is attached to an assumption contained in a report covering New York City. The assumption is that one-sixth of the 240,000 persons on home relief will be found unemployable because of physical deficiencies. That proportion has been discovered by examination of 30,000 individuals more than 5,000 of whom were rejected as being unfit for work.

Gen Hugh S Johnson works progress administrator for New York City strikes the note of importance for the report by commenting "The sad fact is that those eliminated from WPA projects in the course of the enlistment now in progress will probably never be in a position to work again and will remain a permanent charge upon the community." One wonders whether the same proportion will obtain throughout the country or whether unfitness for work in one-sixth of relief beneficiaries is a condition peculiar to New York City. Elsewhere the proportion might be lower or it might be higher.

If the metropolitan report is found to be a true reflection of a national condition care of unemployables as a function of local government will be an even greater problem than is anticipated. Two explanations suggest themselves. The effect of the depression on health is one possible cause for so high a proportion. Another possible explanation is in the procedure followed by WPA in selecting applicants.

Rigorous physical examinations to eliminate the physically unfit in employment of labor on PWA projects may have the effect of drawing lines which do not generally exist in private employment. In other words many applicants rejected by the government and set apart thereby as members of special class entitled to direct relief probably would be able to hold jobs under ordinary circumstances. If all persons who are holding private jobs were to be examined for physical fitness according to arbitrary standards the number of rejections might be even larger than one in six.

More Cool Than Hot

Speculation concerning wheels within wheels in Italy's attitude at Geneva is prompted by a report that Premier Mussolini is staging a show with the League of Nations as the supporting cast. Some believe Il Duce actually is more cool than hot though hotness certainly is his present pose.

It has been said that privately he is taking a far calmer attitude. Events at Geneva according to some observers do not reflect the premier's real attitude at all but only his policy with regard to the League of Nations. He has not closed his mind to the possibility of peaceful settlement of the Ethiopian issue but he has repudiated the methods of the League of Nations.

Premier Mussolini is a good statesman the best of his time according to many opinions. Being a good statesman like being a good politician consists in getting the desired result sometimes by undesirable means if necessary. It is not impossible Il Duce may be two or three jumps ahead of his pursuing critics in current diplomatic maneuvers.

In view of his acknowledged ability as a statesman surely it is not unreasonable to believe he is aware of the immediate consequences of the policy he is pursuing—the criticism resentment and unpopularity he is causing. They are the obvious products of his policy but statesmen do not make a practice of dealing in obvious things. Premier Mussolini has been in international politics too long to let himself be caught in a simple trap. Probably most of the alarm shown over the part he is playing is caused by theatricals [illegible] have relatively little to do with the real facts of the case as he sees them from his desk as Italian dictator.

In This Man's World

There will be sympathetic ear for the resolution of the Professional Air Race Pilots association objecting to women racing pilots on the racing program of the national air races—but vastly more unsympathetic ones. In this man's world it isn't popular to seem to confess that competition with the representatives of the recently liberated sex is serious enough to call for resolutions.

Occasionally, though, males do get exasperated and forget to stand on their superiority. "If we let them in," one racing pilot is said to have warned his fellows, "they'll be in our hair and become pests." That's the whole thing in one sentence. It isn't the competition that the frantic male fears but the competitor. There should be after all some sanctuaries for the die-hard misogynist who wants to exercise his hatred for women a few minutes of each day or a few days of each year.

There aren't any such sanctuaries any more of course and it's hardly reasonable to suppose one will be established in the national air races. Anyway the pilots were daring enough to speak their piece while they still commanded a hearing and when women racing pilots finally have grounded them and forced them into light housework it will be some consolation to know they tried to avert the inevitable.

Misunderstood

President Roosevelt's explanation of his administration released last week in the form of a letter to Roy W. Howard of Scripps-Howard newspapers contains a pointed suggestion that opposition to the administration is caused by misunderstanding. "As the essential outline of what has been done rises into view" the President wrote "I am confident that doubts and misapprehension will vanish. I am confident further that business as a whole will agree with you and with me that the interests of what we broadly term business are not in conflict with but wholly in harmony with mass interests."

In other words President Roosevelt anxious to defend what he has done is willing to confess he has done certain things which are difficult to understand. Their meaning is vague but doubts and misapprehension will vanish as the essential outline of what has been done rises into view.

It would seem therefore politically desirable for the President to reiterate his personal descriptions of the essential outline as a logical continuation of his explanation. There remains confusion on its form in many particulars. More to the point there is grave questioning as to the sufficiency of mere outlines. In practical matters outlines do not satisfy. A desire to be helpful must be accompanied by specific details of action and many of those details seem to have been passed over carelessly in Mr Roosevelt's broad program for helping the United States.

The President's explanation of his purposes as written to Mr Howard is being found only superficially satisfactory to many of those whose doubts and apprehensions it was supposed to remove. That is, they are satisfied by its tone but are not able to be satisfied with its generalities. It is a document that lacks completeness. Mr Roosevelt if he sincerely wants to explain himself will need to fill in the blank spaces.

Fruit.

The real importance of the Social Credit league's success in Alberta's recent election is the impetus given the social credit theories. The movement started by Maj C H Douglas away back in 1918 is beginning to take on proportions of political importance.

It threatens to be a live issue in the Dominion elections in October. Canadians are at least as susceptible to the temptation of panaceas as their neighbors to the south who have listened in large numbers to the social credit preachments of the Rev Fr Coughlin.

Obviously it cannot matter greatly in this stage of the social credit theory that it has not been tested. The fact Alberta voters seem willing to test it is sufficient recommendation for the trusting. They will be open-minded too lest they miss a good thing.

Once more it becomes the unpleasant duty of skeptics to disclose the thorn on the rose stalk. Being equipped only with the always unpopular tool of cynicism they face the task under a disadvantage. At the outset they must incur the taint of destruction.

These are the chief tenets of the doctrine which they will try to prove it workable only on paper:

That the function of industry is not employment but disemployment with paid leisure for the masses shorter hours and universal incomes progressively supplanting wages.

That the wage system must give way under labor-saving technology to the income system publicly administered.

That there should be no inflation with higher prices but rather rising purchasing power accompanied by a fall in prices.

That public debts should be paid with costless credits until there is no more nonmonetized wealth.

That an article should always be paid for from two sources—the consumer's pocket at just price below financial cost and from the national social credit account.

At its worst social credit is only another crackpot theory which will crumple under the strain of reality. At its best social credit is another formula for blending the needs of men with the authority of government to assist in the satisfaction of these needs. The formula's best or worst characteristic depending on the viewpoint is its complexity.

Alberta happens to be the first place where the seed of the idea which Maj Douglas has been sowing for so many years has taken political root. It remains to be seen whether or not the fruit will turn out to be lotus or chokepear. Alberta has nominated itself to do the testing.

BUT THERE ARE LOTS OF CORNERS

Utopia an optimist says is just around the corner. That place around the corner must be getting pretty crowded by now.—Boston Transcript.

Next morning each victim received an order from Tarkington on the most exclusive hatter for his finest hat.

Glancing Backward

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Thursday Sept 10 1925

President Coolidge returned to Washington after a 75-day vacation. Greatly refreshed and invigorated he entered immediately upon an accumulation of problems with a proposed tax cut heading the list.

Mrs Max Blum of Normal Ill was a guest at the home of her sister Mrs James Cahill of Bellevue avenue.

Miss Louise Burgin of South Vine street returned to Indianapolis to resume her studies at Miss Blaker's School for Girls.

Leo Rubeck who had been spending a vacation period at his home on Chestnut street returned to Floyd Knobs Ind to resume his studies at Mt St Francis college.

Mrs W E Scofield Mrs Herman S Rhu and Miss Hope Fisher of Marion and Mrs Thomas M Sawyer of Hillsdale Mich were hostesses at a tea given at the Scofield home on Bellefontaine avenue.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Friday Sept 10 1915

Friendly diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany and Austria were reported in grave danger of interruption. The strained relationship with Germany resulted from failure to arrive at a satisfactory settlement of difficulties resulting from sinking of the steamship Arabic by a German submarine. The situation involving Austria was the outcome of revelations that the Austrian ambassador Dumba had been directing efforts to disorganize American munition factories. Washington had demanded Dumba's recall.

Marion Lodge Knights of Pythias arranged to cooperate with Alfred Horn in booking a series of four concerts here with outstanding singers and musicians as the star attractions. [illegible] Schoenlaub and Fred F Schaeffer were named a committee to represent the lodge.

Dr Jesse Swank new pastor of Epworth M P church was speaker at a social given by the Cheri Sunday school class.

Mr and Mrs Frank Stanley of East Church street and George Trost of North State street went to Cincinnati for a week's visit.

EARLY SETTLERS

One of the early settlers in Marion county was Captain William S Drake who migrated to Marlboro township in 180[illegible] He entered 100 acres of land at $2.50 per acre paying one third down and the balance in one and two year payments.

He and his son Uriah cleared a small patch the first year and put in a crop of corn pumpkins and potatoes. Captain Drake then returned to New York for his family leaving Uriah to cultivate the crop. He returned in 1808 with a family consisting of his wife and seven children. They traveled the entire distance in an old [illegible] wagon drawn by [illegible] pairs of horses. The amount of cash in the family purse on their arrival was 25 cents.

Behind The News In Washington And Wall Street

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON Sept 10—Don't be surprised if Harold Ickes hops in an airplane for Hyde Park one of these days and hands President Roosevelt his resignation as PWA administrator. The erstwhile strong man of the cabinet has been completely sidetracked by Harry Hopkins in the handling of work relief fund.

You can't obtain the figures at either office but in the last few weeks Mr Hopkins has thrown out 00 PWA projects totalling about $100,000,000. So far Mr Ickes has received only $1,0000,000 from the four billion appropriation. Mr Hopkins won't listen to Ickes requests for money for hospitals schools tunnels bridges power plants. They don't put enough people to work. He has blocked 16 projects in Ickes own state of Illinois and 75 in his Iowa birth state. It is too late to revise these applications so that they can be approved before the September 12 deadline fixed by the President.

The political squawks are becoming faintly audible. Cities and states which have spent money in preparing blueprints and holding bond issue elections charge that they have been double-crossed. Labor which gets the prevailing wage under the Ickes plan and only a subsistence allowance under boondoggling is rearing up again. Delegations of governors senators and mayors who complain to Mr Ickes are politely referred to the other Harry.

Cases

The Ickes-Hopkins controversy is a serious question to the people back home. Here's how it strikes several communities in North Dakota.

When the school in Palermo burned down the children were shifted to inadequate structures. Mr Ickes favored the town's application for a loan for a new school (the people voted to pay 55 per cent themselves) but it was turned down by Mr Hopkins on the ground that relief labor for the project is unavailable. In neighboring hamlets however he is furnishing funds for bird sanctuaries and golf courses.

In the town of Bow Bells CWA relievers built a swimming pool but the application for a sewer and water system was rejected. So the youngsters can swim for two months and go without a bath for ten months. Water imported into Bow Bells in tanks is distributed through an improvised system built by FERA workers. But the pipes are so poorly constructed according to an unofficial protest that travelling men won't bathe in the water let alone drink it. It gives Bow Bells—and Mr Hopkins—a bad name.

Taxes

President Roosevelt's breathing spell message to business was no surprise to his close associates.

The Chief Executive who has an excellent historical background frequently recalls that the great financiers fought the Federal Reserve system and then embraced it. He often refers to the way in which Wall Street has become resigned to if not enthusiastic about the securities exchange legislation as administered by Chairman Kennedy. Even the utilities with the exception of two chains which the administration would like to put out of business are beginning to cooperate with TVA and REA. The bankers have swallowed the recent revision of the banking system without choking. These things convince him that business can carry on under the new deal at the same old stand.

Insiders feel that the public missed the most significant point in his pronouncement. He blamed congress for not broadening the taxation base as proposed by young Bob La Follette. He emphasized the increasing volume and burden of invisible taxes. Between the lines you can find a hint that he favors heavier taxes on the little fellow to pay off the national debt—but not until after the 1936 elections.

Cloture

Elliott Roosevelt's decision to quit Texas politics revives a question [illegible] politics is a [illegible] thing to discuss in public. But it has caused them a great deal of misgiving.

The political activity of the President's family has brought many protests and warnings to Democratic headquarters—to both the men's and women's divisions. If the party strategists spoke their inner thoughts they would suggest that Mrs Roosevelt and the two boys Elliott and James—leave all politics to the head of the family. So many people think a woman's place is in the home that they write to Washington—and the papers—about it.

On the other hand there are many women who admire Mrs Roosevelt for her tremendous interest in civic questions. Those who note her influence in effecting appointments of concern to her sex approve her activities. But the men seem to have it. You will see and hear less of the other members of the royal family from now on.

Skeptic

One little word slipped into the bill repealing the Volstead Act's no longer effective provisions may rout the bootleggers who have hung on since repeal of prohibition.

The treasury has gradually obtained congressional authority to check up on sales of alcohol and the raw products—corn molasses etc—which go into its manufacture. But it has had no way of following up the supplies of alcohol sold for use in the manufacture of tonic toilet preparations and medicines which might later be recooked for beverage purposes. That is where the dike has leaked since repeal especially in New York New Jersey and eastern Pennsylvania.

But in the new bill treasury lobbyists inveigled congress into giving them power to require reports on all articles made from alcohol. As a result every maker and retailer of a hair or beauty or stomach tonic must file accountings of their sales and purchases. And if any section becomes too zealous in developing its hair or stomach or beauty it will have to explain to Henry Morgenthau who is a bald-headed skeptic with an excellent digestion.

BY JAMES McMULLIN

NEW YORK Sept 10—Financial New York's zest for the new issues offered by the treasury in exchange for the final billion and a quarter dollar installment of called Fourth Liberties was decidedly weaker than published reports indicated. The conversion will be adequately successful—but more because of the treasury's cagey strategy than because of investors enthusiasm.

Secretary Morgenthau was bold—and smart—in throwing a $500,000,000 issue of one and one-half per cent notes at the market (apart from those offered for conversion) within a week after a comparable offering of only $100,000,000 had fizzled badly. The larger issue was oversubscribed two and a half times—thus sponging the bad psychological effect of the earlier flop off the slate.

The astonishing discrepancy in the reception accorded to the two offerings can be partly ascribed to three technical differences between them—so minor as to seem absurdly trivial to the layman but quite important to bankers and bond dealers accustomed to the intricate details which affect bond values.

Thus

Both issues bear a one and a half per cent coupon but the one that flivvered matures in four years as against three and a half for the one that succeeded. Just that slight reduction makes the rate a fair yield on the latter and insufficient on the former from the viewpoint of gimlet-eyed Wall Street experts. Again the issue that went over was a direct obligation of the U S government while the other was indirect (Federal Farm Mortgage Corp) but guaranteed by the government. Not many investing institutions and administrators of large trusts blink or crease and that counts even if their reasons are mostly traditional prejudice. Finally the first offering was sold at auction and the second at a fixed price. The banks much prefer to know exactly what they will have to pay in a market where one-sixty-fourth of a point is an important fluctuation.

Perhaps it shouldn't make sense that these minutiae could influence financial men to grab for one issue and shun the other. But it does and Mr Morgenthau was shrewd enough to realize it.

He made these technical concessions which are meaningless to the public (and therefore cost him no prestige) with full assurance that they would be a tremendous help in putting his program across. From such tiny acorns do the oaks of strong markets and public confidence grow.

Hush

But these technical differences don't tell the whole story. Insiders say an even more significant part of it is concealed behind Mr Morgenthau's announcement that henceforth the treasury will keep its transactions in government securities a secret. They are convinced—though they admittedly cannot prove it—that subscriptions from federal agencies contributed largely to that impressive oversubscription. These are now free to support the government bond market without giving the show away—thus intensifying the value of their support.

Why was $500,000,000 raised in cash aside from the conversion operation? That was another cagey move. It provides an insurance fund to pay off holders of Liberties who may want their dough instead of other securities—thus avoiding any possible embarrassment on that score in case the conversion offer should prove less attractive than the treasury hopes.

The terms of the 2 [illegible] per cent 10-12 year bonds were forecast here exactly. As we also prophesied—they give Mr Morgenthau a chance to gloat a bit about the unprecedentedly low coupon rate without inviting public attention to the remarkable shortening of maturity from the last previous issue of 20-25 year 2 [illegible] per cent bonds. New York is a trifle irked about this subtle device and the bonds may not go so well—even for conversion—unless the general market for federal securities is given a push by the treasury. It undoubtedly will be in case of need.

Duds

Roosevelt's remarks in his published correspondence with Roy Howard to the effect that his reform program is about completed evoked more cynical chuckles than applause in New York. Insiders expected something of the sort as the opening gun of the President's campaign to recapture business support—as predicted here.

Comment runs that he'll never breach conservative walls with such cream puff ammunition—and confirmed right wingers are confident that all his shells will be duds.

Lead Poison.

Although lead poisoning is not as common as it was in former years, it is still too frequently encountered. As a rule it is found among laborers in certain industrial plants where precautions are not taken to prevent it. Occasionally it is encountered in some unexpected place where it resulted from the use of some substance containing an excessive amount of lead.

When the true nature of the disturbance is not suspected it may be mistaken for some other ailment. As a matter of fact, in the mild form of lead poisoning the symptoms are always misleading. The disease can easily be confused with appendicitis or some disturbance of the gall bladder.

As a rule, the victim is first seized with an attack of acute pain in the abdomen. He suffers from nausea and vomiting, loss of appetite, and may even run a temperature. It will be readily seen how this picture can be confused with that of an attack of appendicitis or some digestive disturbance.

Of course, the chronic form of lead poisoning is more easily recognized. There is a peculiar paralysis which usually involves the wrist or ankle. This is known as "wrist-drop" or "ankle-drop." It is impossible to keep the wrist in normal position or to control the [illegible] of the foot below the ankle.

The sufferer from lead poisoning usually has poor health. He may complain of colic, constipation and loss of strength. As a rule he becomes progressively weaker and unable to carry on with his work. [illegible] the teeth become sensitive [illegible] with an excessive flow [illegible]. Upon examination it will be found that the teeth are in poor [illegible]. A characteristic sign of lead poisoning or other metal poisoning is the presence of a black [illegible] along the margins of the [illegible] gums. This should always arouse suspicion.

In the treatment of lead poisoning [illegible] complete rest in bed is [illegible]. Fresh air in abundance, [illegible] and nourishing food are [illegible]. The diet should contain plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables. Any tendency toward constipation should be corrected. At least [illegible] glasses of water should be taken every day.

DAVEY'S IGNORING OF SUBPOENA UNHEEDED

Cleveland Attorney in Sales Tax Stamp Case Will Not Demand Appearance

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS O Sept 10 Gov Davey's snub of a subpoena calling for him to testify in an injunction suit apparently will go unheeded.

L D Stanley attorney for W G Crawford of Cleveland who seeks a permanent injunction to prevent the state from carrying out a contract to purchase 780 000 000 sales tax stamps said he would not press for the executive's appearance.

Stanley who subpoenaed Davey declined to say what testimony he sought from the governor.

Backing Davey's nonappearance is a constitutional provision providing that the governor can not be compelled to appear in court while in the capital on official business.

Carlton Dargusch vice chairman of the tax commission in charge of sales tax division was scheduled to resume testimony today at a continuation of the hearing.

FOUR LONG BROTHERS REUNITED AT BEDSIDE

Politics and Personal Affairs Had Made Wide Gap in Family's Relations

By The Associated Press

BATON ROUGE La Sept 10 The death bed of Huey Long brought together for the first time in years the four Long brothers who at times differed bitterly over politics and personal affairs.

Most noticeable around the bed was Julius Long the oldest brother, who loaned Huey funds to get his law education and became his law partner in Huey's early days.

In recent years Julius and Huey broke off all relations Julius branding Huey a political madman. Julius even testified before the senate investigating committee against his brother but when Huey was dying in the hospital Julius came and mingled his tears with those of the brothers.

Earl Long the youngest brother in recent months had been reunited with Huey in his politics after several years separation. Before the reconciliation Earl worked with Huey's most bitter political opponents but the deathbed brought him into the fold of sorrowful relatives.

Dr George S Long a second brother journeyed from Oklahoma for a farewell to Huey. George had been an admirer of his brother although Huey had refused to aid him in his campaign for office in Oklahoma. Huey's death sorely affected him.

COUNCIL ACTS ON IMPORTANT ITEMS

at the conference in Findlay plan to submit special levies to their voters this fall.

It was pointed out by Lorain officials that cities in view of the acute financial problems they are facing in 1936 should put at least part of the responsibility for solving the problems on the voters themselves Mr Bell said.

Applying this suggestion locally he said he felt Marion residents should have the opportunity to make a choice between providing revenue in the form of a levy or enduring the curtailments in services furnished by the city unless revenue is obtained from sources not now in sight.

The financial outlook for next year he said is one beyond control of council and one that the voters themselves should help face.

Regarding need for the levy he said the city at present faces prospects of ending the year 1935 with an operating deficit for the year of approximately $61 500. This he said probably will consist of $17 000 in unpaid street lighting bills $12 500 in unpaid water hydrant rentals $12 000 in unpaid bills at the City hospital and $20 000 owed local banks. The city he continued doesn't have as favorable an outlook for revenue in 1936 as it had in 1935 and in addition 10 per cent restorations of salaries amounting to about $10 000 for the year are contemplated.

The city will need the revenue the levy would raise. If the voters turn down the proposed levy council at least can feel better justified in making the curtailments that will be necessary in 1936 if this extra money is not provided.

New Parking System

In adopting the 30-degree angle parking ordinance council voted again on a measure it acted on a few weeks ago. Its first action on the ordinance however was held illegal by City Solicitor Theodore B Ochs who said that council failed to give it the required three-fourths vote needed to suspend the rules that require readings at three consecutive meetings. The ordinance received unanimous support last night and was passed without any comments from private citizens or discussion by council members.

It will substitute 30-degree angle parking for present 45-degree angle parking on both sides of Main street from George street to Columbia street and both sides of Center street from Baker street to the Pennsylvania railroad. The relative position of parked automobiles and the curb line under 30-degree parking is the same as hands of a clock at five minutes past 12. Under the present 45-degree angle the relative position is the same as when the hands of a clock show seven and one half minutes past 12. Modification of the angle to 30 degrees is expected to leave a wider lane in the center of the street for use of moving traffic representing a compromise between the present 45-degree angle and the proposal that cars be parked parallel with the curb line.

Council did not discuss in open meeting the proposal of Police Chief William L Marks that the 'one plan' of handling traffic be tried at the Main and Center street intersection as a substitute for the present ordinance prohibiting left and right turns at the intersection on Saturday afternoons and nights.

Budget Measure

The budget approved last night without protest or discussion sets up $305 508.60 as the estimated needs of the city for operating purposes next year and $140 248 for debt purposes.

The amount sought for operating purposes said by the finance committee of council to have been based on actual needs is $21 001 less than council sought a year ago for operating purposes in 1935.

Restoration of 10 per cent pay cuts that have been in effect for all except two months of this year is provided for in the budget. The 1936 budget calls for approximately $75 882 more than officials estimate will be spent for operating purposes in 1935 but members of the finance committee have predicted that the city will end the year with an operating deficit of around $61 500 and have pointed out that the amount available this year is inadequate to carry on normal municipal operations.

Council last night certified the budget to the county auditor who also is chairman of the county budget commission which will use the city budget along with those of other subdivisions in computing the real estate tax rates that will be in effect during the next December and the June 1936 tax collection periods.

Action on the proposals of the Marion Water Co that the city issue bonds against delinquent taxes to pay off the deficit for municipal operations in past years and refund bonds falling due within the 10 mill limitation in 1936 was delayed to permit officials to determine definitely whether the city would get the full benefit of this course of action. It was suggested that if the city refunded bonds within the 10 mill limitation falling due next year the millage left free by this move for use in raising operating revenue might have to be shared with other political subdivisions instead of giving the city the full benefit of the move. Definite answer to this question and possible action by council on the water company's proposals are expected within a few weeks.

Bond Refund Lower

Council also reduced from $75 000 to $70 000 the amount of city bonds falling due this month and next that will be refunded. City Solicitor Theodore B Ochs said that revised estimates of the money that will be available for payment of bonds resulted in the revision.

Council also

Authorized the city service and safety directors to receive bids for approximately 350 tons of four inch screened Ohio coal for use at the City hospital three fire stations sewage treatment plant and the city barn.

Appropriated $2.50 to pay a premium due on the official bond of City Engineer I S Cathers.

Referred to the street and alley committee a letter from E J Salter manager of the Railway Express agency here that steps be taken to eliminate parking on both sides of South Prospect street at a point where there is a curve in the street. Mr Salter said this point when cars are parked on both sides of the street presents a traffic hazard.

Authorized the C D & M Electric Co to remove two street lights one on the east side and the other on the west side of North State street just south of Quarry street. One of the lights interferes with a driveway of the Bindley Grocery Co and the other is connected with this light.

Authorized the service director to pay $50 to Victor H Michel for right of way across his property for a 15-inch storm water sewer.

SCHOOL BOARD OPENS DRIVE FOR TAX LEVY

not enough millage inside the 10 mill limitation to operate the schools even with the state funds that are expected to be available under the foundation program, he said.

Based on 100 per cent collection basis the three mill levy would produce $90 000 which is sufficient to operate the schools two and one half months. If the levy is not voted the schools would operate only six and one half months Mr Hudson explained. The levy doesn't produce what it formerly did because of increased delinquencies in tax payments. The $90 000 estimate is based on a 100 per cent tax collection.

Mr Hudson said a majority of the school districts in Ohio have been forced to enact tax levies to operate and that they will be compelled to continue them even with the additional funds to be available under the foundation program.

Just how much money will be available to the schools inside the 10 mill limitation has not yet been determined.

The three teachers hired by the board at last night's meeting are Miss Othelia McClenathan of Cardington Miss Ruth Powell of McCutcheonsville O and Miss Ruth Moore of Cleveland.

Miss McClenathan is a graduate of Bowling Green university and taught last year in the rural schools in Morrow county. She has been assigned to Oak Street school.

Miss Powell also is a Bowling Green university graduate and has been teaching for a number of years at King's Mills near Cincinnati. She will be at Olney Avenue school.

Miss Moore was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan university. She will teach world history at Harding High school.

Long's Remarks Generally Aimed Against Wealthy

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON Sept 10—Here are some quotations from the speeches of Sen Huey P Long:

"I would rather see my laws (share-our-wealth) passed than be President. Passage of the laws is the only way they can keep me from being president if I want to be—unless I die."

"None will be too rich none too big none too small but at the end and at the most—every man a king."

"I'd prefer to be the first citizen of Louisiana rather than second citizen of the United States. I wouldn't have had any trouble swapping into the vice presidency the last time."

"When you go into a booth and ask for a ballot for either Roosevelt or Hoover you're just asking for an introduction to the gate keeper of hell."

"You can have the NRA and PWA and CWA and the CCC and GIS and any other kind of dad gummed lettered code. You can wait until doomsday and see 25 more alphabets but that is not going to solve this proposition."

"This ain't a Democratic party running the government now. It's a St Vitus dance party designated by a blue buzzard and a dead one at that."

"The billingsgate and the profanity of all the Farleys and Johnsons in America can't prevent the light of truth from hurling itself in understandable letters against the dark canopy of the sky."

Here is a poem Long wrote:

Why weep or slumber America
 Land of brave and true
With castles clothing and food for all
 All belongs to you
Every man a king every man a king
 For you can be a millionaire
But there's something belonging to others
 There's enough for all people to share
When it's sunny June and December too
 Or in the winter time or spring
There'll be peace without end
 Every neighbor a friend
With every man a king

GAS METERS READ ON HIGHER RATES

Starting Today Bills Will Be Computed on New Charges

Gas meter readings taken today and in the future will be charged at the new increased rates agreed upon by the Ohio Fuel Gas Co and city council recently in settlement of a 10-year controversy over rates.

The new rates actually became effective Aug 21 but could not be put into effect in all Marion homes at once due to the fact that 30 days are required to read the meters in the city it was explained at the office of C F Bronson district manager for the Ohio Fuel Gas Co.

Adopting a method gas officials said is commonly used to put new rate schedules into effect the company selected Sept 10 as an arbitrary date on which to start billing meter readings at the new rate. This date was selected because the company estimated that up to today 60 per cent of the total amount of gas consumed by Marion residents in a one month period begun Aug 21 had passed through meters and had been billed at the old rate.

The cost of 5 000 cubic feet of gas under the new rates is $3.15 an increase of 50 cents over the cost under the old rates.

Story of Huey Long Tells of Louisiana Farm Boy Who Literally Fought Way To State Dictatorship

BATON ROUGE, La., Sep 10—A Louisiana farmer bumped along on a spring wagon some 30 years ago and to the spindle-shanked boy who rode beside him he addressed his dour forecast: "If you stay alive until you are 21 you will be the wonder of the world."

The farmer's name was Long and the youth beside him was Huey Pierce Long and, although the father missed his prophecy by a number of decades, the world at large has been expecting the violence [illegible] conceivably [illegible] him who employed it.

Senator Huey Long quite outlived his father's expectations—lived to become a United States senator—perhaps he is a [illegible] United States senator in the history of the United States.

For the name immediately conjures up strange things which in the public memory will live long after any of the serious things the senator may be credited to do. [illegible] business with the other members of the United States senate looking at Long (if they looked at all) with the utmost loathing. Of talk about such unimportant things as corn pone and pot likker. Pajamas and the heathen practice of receiving emissaries of foreign powers in them.

A fight in a wash room and a black eye—and although the actual occurrence was as delicately veiled as it could have been the country admitted that Huey had it coming. And then some. Calling out the state militia to serve as his body guard during his campaign. The employment of body guards constantly during his term as senator. Giving an orchestra instructions to keep on playing until told to stop.

He clowned—but his clowning was tempered with a sharp intelligence and presently soon he could not be laughed off as a clown. It has been recorded that he actually did improve many things in his state (if liberty be discounted and forgotten)—but history probably will recall him chiefly for the unorthodox and frequently hoydenish things he did.

They tried to laugh him off as a clown—and the first thing they knew he had enough of a following so that he seriously considered running for the presidency of the United States.

But many things occurred between the time that the gangling Long boy went riding with his father and what was the final chapter in this strange and fantastic and Gargantuan career.

Summary of Life Story

Concisely summarized the story of Huey Long's life records his birth at Winnfield, La., on Aug. 30, 1893. His parents were poor farm folk living in Winn parish, a red clay hill district similar to the hill sections of other southern states where agriculture is generally unprofitable.

At 10 he married Miss Rose McConnell of Shreveport, a pretty girl whose acquaintance he formed when she won a cake baking contest held under Huey's direction. These contests were arranged by him in his campaign to promote the use of cotton oil, which was marketed by him in his early career as a salesman.

In 191[illegible] at the age of [illegible] he was admitted to the Louisiana bar after having prepared himself for a law practice despite lack of high school or college training.

He became Louisiana railroad commissioner in 1918, a member of the Louisiana public service commission in 1921 and governor of his state in 1928. He defeated an effort to impeach him and in 1931 was elected to the United States senate. From then on he acquired increasing power until his status as a virtual dictator was attained.

Successful Salesman

At 16 Huey Long was a traveling salesman. He rang door bells, braced the small town merchants and tacked up signs. Perhaps at that early date he had fantastic dreams of dining in state in his shirt sleeves with his red suspenders gleaming on boiled beef, grits, turnip greens and pot likker. For already he was on his own and he mapped out a line and hewed to it.

A drummer, he moved. Here, there, everywhere. He moved and talked and wheedled and used his wits on whatever he chanced to be selling. To Texas. To Oklahoma. To Memphis. To Kansas City. Back again to Memphis where he caught on to the first rung of the ladder—sales manager—and wrapped his arms about it and hung on tight.

Huey sold himself—those who have seen him and who have talked with him know that he had personality. He found a patron—and the patron made it possible for him to take at least one year of law. Then possibly with the Kingfish sign in the back of his mind he married and moved to New Orleans. He entered Tulane university determined to finish the rest of his law course in one year. He had begun to hunger for something better than the life of a drummer.

Wins Recognition

He passed his law examinations. Regulations however did not permit him to take his bar examination. But Long was a salesman. First he sold a judge and then he sold a bar committee and he talked so well that he persuaded the committee to call an extra session and question him—the whole committee. He didn't care—and so admit him to the bar. The committee did and Huey did—and now he was a lawyer.

Like some other young lawyers he was faced with the desirability and even necessity of securing a practice. He needed clients. His young wife was loyal but a determined effort failed. The Longs folded their tent and went home to Winnfield.

Here Huey Long rented a small room, hung out a cut price shingle and moved his worldly possessions viz. one kitchen table and a chair. He added another chair for a client but it got dusty. Finally, however, he squeezed into local politics, wrote some legislation, ate pot likker and thrived and managed to make his practice thrive as well. By the time he was 25 this fantastic Horatio Alger had landed himself a place on the state railway commission.

He moved to Shreveport and became counsel for the independent oil companies. He was a battler and he prospered and by 1920 he had considerable weight to throw into the gubernatorial election. His candidate won.

Elected Governor

They forgot then all about Huey Long, but nothing daunted he took up the cause of Sen[illegible]. But opponents had ousted him and they quarreled him out of the chairmanship of the railway commission—and Huey the lawyer went back to his law.

In 1924 he began his real battle for the governorship. New Orleans was against him—but he won. He pushed through legislation for free school books, although he had to fight its constitutionality right up to the supreme court of the United States. But free books were a hit—a direct bull's eye. His followers began to call him "genius," "friend of the poor," "champion of the people's rights."

His enemies began more frequently to use the word "dictator."

But Long built roads, rebuilt the executive mansion, erected the most [illegible] state house. He also took over his political enemies and he didn't fool. He cleared them out of various state offices and appointed others. In March, 1929, when he called a special session of the legislature to enact a tax of 5 cents a barrel on crude oil the storm broke.

Faces Charges

The house of representatives presented articles of impeachment containing 19 charges, among them accusations that Long had attempted to bribe legislators, had used the appointive power to influence the judiciary and had flaunted the constitutional limitations on the governorship. And (even more) [illegible] that he had [illegible] a body guard to kill an opposition legislator and then finally he had participated in a scandalous studio party in New Orleans.

Long beat the impeachment by one vote. A two-thirds vote was necessary to convict and he got 15 senators—one more than one third—to sign a statement that they would not vote for impeachment because the articles were faultily drawn. The 15 senators curiously were rewarded with political preferment.

There may be smarter people than me, he once declared, but they ain't in Louisiana.

In 1930 Long ran for the United States senate. He won a closely contested Democratic primary and was elected without formal opposition. In the same election bond issues of $65,000,000 for roads and $5,000,000 for the state's 33 story capitol were approved.

Ordinarily Long would have taken his seat in the federal senate on March 4, 1931, but he had fallen out with his lieutenant governor, Dr. Paul Cyr. He (Long) had hanged a pair of murderers whom Cyr had befriended. Long decided to hold on the governorship until he could be assured that no political foe would succeed him. He was keeping the home fences well repaired.

Another Fight Won

Dr. Cyr finally went before a notary and took the oath as governor, filing an ouster suit against Long. But Long, declaring that Cyr by his action had vacated the post of lieutenant governor, caused O. A. King, president pro tempore of the state senate, to assume that post. Then he went into court and personally argued a victory against the ouster suit.

Then he engineered O. K. Allen through the gubernatorial primary of January, 1932. Long's entire slate won for state offices and a majority of his nominees for the legislature won as well.

Then gaily he took a train for Washington—this former starch salesman—and the Kingfish was about to swim in the biggest political ocean he had ever encountered.

New members in the senate are supposed to be little gentlemen and keep their mouths shut and their ears open until they know what it's all about. But Senator Long spoke almost at once. He declaimed his "share the wealth" project and denounced his party's leader, Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, for compromising with Republicans.

This was very bad manners. It was hailed as such and the Kingfish was called variously madman, demagogue, destroyer of constitutional government and downright political racketeer.

But in February, 1932, Long was back in New Orleans, had himself named Democratic national committeeman and supervised the selection of a delegation to the party's national convention in Chicago.

Supports Roosevelt

Before that body met he beat the gun, came out in favor of the Roosevelt candidacy and when his delegation's credentials were challenged won a majority vote in the convention. This was hailed as the first test of Roosevelt strength.

After the convention he campaigned in Arkansas for Mrs. Hattie Caraway who won the Democratic senatorial nomination. Then he canvassed Louisiana for Overton, took some sound trucks and Roosevelt literature to the Dakotas.

The taxation in Louisiana put through by Long started a revolt which climaxed in January of this year when the Square Deal association, organized by anti-Long people, assembled in Baton Rouge to demand that Gov. Allen summon the legislature and do something about it. Senator Long hurried to Baton Rouge.

Many of the Square Dealers were armed. The militia and state police were called out. One citizen was wounded, extensive bloodshed narrowly averted.

At the same time Sen. Long opened a personally conducted court inquiry into an alleged plot which he said his enemies had formed to kill him.

The hearing was held inside a ring of machine guns and bayonets and Long claimed that he had proved his contention.

Wars on Roosevelt

In the same year Sen. Long began to set the stage for his entrance into the presidential campaign arena by first launching his advocacy of a "share the wealth" program.

He broke with the Roosevelt administration in recent months became its most vigorous and open critic in the ranks of Democratic leaders. His drive against the President and his policies finally led up to his sensational announcement that he would be a candidate for the presidency in 1936.

ASSASSIN'S BULLET KILLS HUEY LONG

father Dr. Roy Long and several cousins.

The marriage of Long and the former Rose McConnell followed a courtship typical of the speed of the senator's life.

They met in Memphis, Long, traveling agent for a packing firm, was promoting a cooking contest. Mrs. Long won the prize. A few months later during a visit to Shreveport she was instrumental in exonerating Long, who was charged with participating in a minor shooting scrape. She produced a seat stub as proof he escorted her to a theater the night of the shooting.

The fifth blood transfusion which the physicians attempted to administer to Sen. Long was completed. A [illegible] Dr. [illegible] Sanders announced there was no longer any hope.

"He is dying," he said.

The end was only a little more than an hour away then and the physicians had abandoned their battle against death.

"We have done everything in the world we could for him," Dr. Sanderson said before [illegible] visited.

Gov. Allen made the official death announcement. His voice was husky and barely audible.

Governor Lauds Long

"This marks with the death of Huey P. Long the passing of the greatest builder of economies in the history of Louisiana in 35 years," he said. "It also marks with the death of Huey P. Long the passing of the greatest hero for the common rights of all the people of America."

While Long and his physicians fought for his life, the corridors around the hospital were barred by troops and police who swarmed over all Baton Rouge, a multiplication of the guard which failed to save him in the statehouse.

The legislature met yesterday and ground out the senator's bills. One of them gerrymandered the political [illegible] of District Judge B. H. Pavy, the assassin Weiss' father-in-law. [illegible] searched all for weapons. The [illegible] last night and sent the bills to its finance committee after a minister implored a Deity too wise to err to save the senator.

Inquest Postponed

The parish coroner started an inquest into the death of Dr. Weiss but postponed it after only two witnesses testified. He said he might have to close the inquest because he was powerless to make the senator's guards, slayers of the assassin, appear.

Just before Sen. Long came in to his range, Weiss said: "It won't be long now."

As an auto bore Sen. Long to the hospital he said: "I wonder why he shot me."

There was much speculation on the possible effect of Sen. Long's death on the political empire which was built largely about his own dynamic personality. Some political leaders including the veteran Sen. Ellison D. Smith, Democrat of South Dakota, believed the whole Long movement in the state and in the nation would collapse.

It was a tense night vigil about the hospital as Long's strength ebbed. Traffic was diverted. Unless [illegible]ers had special permits they had no chance to get through the heavy guards and to the hospital. The doctors for the last part were [illegible] about the struggle.

Warned at 7 P. M.

Now and then an attendant or a nurse dropped a word or that showed how things were going. The first real alarm among the watchers came at [illegible] p. m. when a serious sinking spell was reported unofficially. Up to that time not even the necessity for a second blood transfusion at noon yesterday could dim the hope that the senator's [illegible] vitality would pull him through.

An hour and a half after the sinking spell was reported one of the doctors said: "The senator is holding his own."

But shortly later the alarmed physicians ordered blood tests for another transfusion. An oxygen tank was rushed in and it was learned an oxygen tent had been taken in earlier. The transfusion was completed at midnight.

A little while after the senator became delirious and then intermittently unconscious. He was sinking fast.

Word came out of the sick room that there was no longer any hope. Then the physicians gave up.

They sat back and awaited what they knew was inevitable.

JURY NEARING END OF WORK

Report of Session Set for 1 P. M. Wednesday Before Judge Young

The September grand jury in session since Monday morning prepared to finish its work this afternoon. It is scheduled to report its findings to Common Pleas Judge Henry S. Young Wednesday at 1 p. m.

Four cases were added to the jury's calendar of eight cases today, Prosecuting Attorney Earl D. Mick said. They are the case of Watson Swisegood, alias C. J. Watson, of West Mansfield, charged with issuing a $70 check to the Campbell National bank at LaRue without sufficient funds on deposit to pay it; the cases of John Millikin and George Cline, two men who have been staying at the federal transient bureau here, charged with statutory offenses, and the case of Driver Campbell, charged with grand larceny.

The jury today was scheduled to consider the first degree murder charge against Dominic Spagnoni of 866 Kenton avenue in connection with death of Jesse Yoder, 37, during a poker game quarrel and Sherill P. Edmonds, 23, of Greensboro, N. C., charged with breaking and entering a bulk plant of the Pure Oil Co. The oil station burglary was followed by a chase in which police fired upon Edmonds' truck and during which two men escaped. Edmonds has admitted he was one of the two men and was driving the truck at the time of the chase.

Personnel of the grand jury was changed yesterday to replace three who were excused from service. The revised list of jurors is as follows: Albert Potter of Marion R. F. D. No. 6; Hazel Hoopes of near LaRue; William M. Dalton of 574 Silver street; George O. Thomas of Prospect; J. F. Crissinger of 400 South Greenwood street; Dennis O'Connell of 224 North Prospect street; C. R. Skaggs of near Morral; Jon Van Virden of LaRue; William K. Haines of 501 Summit street; C. G. Francis of 208 Kensington place; Scott Wooley of the Prospect pike; Earl J. Lee of 280 West Church street; Mary Kelly of 210 North Main street; Zoe Bailey of 272 North Prospect street; James Corcoran of East Farming street.

LONG MACHINE NOW RUDDERLESS IN EDDY

lace, Long's legislative adviser, and others.

On one of these six the chances are the toga of Long will fall but that will be determined in faction caucus later. Whether any one of these can hold the gigantic and all embracing work laid down by the redoubtable Huey remains to be seen. There was only one Huey Long.

The death of Long also aroused the anti-Long politicians. They are out to catch up any political material that may drift away from the Long faction camp.

Long's death may reunite the old regulars in the city of New Orleans headed by Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, most of whose following deserted to the ranks of Huey Long after the Long controlled legislature had driven the city into virtual bankruptcy. Long died just as he was driving through measures that would restore revenue to New Orleans after the old regulars had capitulated.

BISHOP BROWN'S NEW PLANE BROUGHT HERE

The airplane in which Bishop William Montgomery Brown of Galion plans to travel on a lecture tour this fall beginning about Nov. 1 arrived at Marion airport yesterday where it will be housed in the hangar while not in use.

The plane, a Waco cabin type with accommodations for three passengers and the pilot, is painted red and trimmed in black. The pilot is Howard M. Sayre, employed by the bishop as overseer of his home, Brownella cottage, in Galion.

Sayre, who took flying instructions at Marion airport and who recently has been in Cleveland taking instructions regarding the handling of the new plane, brought the plane to Marion yesterday.

Bishop Brown, who recently purchased the plane, has become an air enthusiast. Celebrating his eightieth birthday anniversary this month, he attended the air races at Cleveland and has taken a number of flights.

He is now putting the finishing touches on a new lecture, "Science and the Future of the Race," which he plans to give in Cleveland, Toledo, Detroit and other cities under auspices of local organizations of Communists and other liberal or radical groups.

COUNTY FAIR GETS UNDER WAY TODAY

Thursday to permit employes to attend the fair.

One of the first features of the fair will be the presentation tonight of the New York Follies in front of the grandstand. Tonight as throughout today there will be no admission charge at the gate but admission to the grandstand will be charged tonight for the show.

A new feature on the fair program was announced today when arrangements were made for home economics pupils in Marion county schools to give a demonstration in a tent near the junior fair displays Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock.

As exhibits took form today A. J. Loudenslager, superintendent of the draft horse department, reported he has received 90 entries, the largest number in 10 years and an increase of 7 over last year's total number. These horses will be paraded in front of the grandstand Thursday night and Friday afternoon.

Six Hundred Entries

The vegetable department counted more than 600 entries, one of the largest in years, Charles Philbrook, superintendent, said. Fine arts in charge of Samuel Lauer had 446 displays, swine in charge of [illegible] Dalton had 117, cattle in charge of J. E. Swisher had 137 and sheep in charge of M. A. Virtue had 151 entries. P. O. [illegible], in charge of poultry exhibits, estimated that 90 persons have entered nearly 400 head of poultry, an increase of 25 per cent over last year. Five granges have entered competition for subordinate grange awards. They are Bowling Green, Pleasant, Grand Prairie, Prairie Valley and Progressive.

The junior fair with a budget twice the size of the $500 [illegible] allowed in previous years has taken over three buildings and two tents to house its exhibits. The junior fair is divided into four sections. In the juvenile grange division are four entries, Grand Prairie, Bowling Green, Prairie Valley and Mt. Olive juvenile granges, each of which has entered a booth. In the home economics division 30 girls who are pupils at Waldo, Agosta, Martel, Pleasant, LaRue and [illegible] schools have made entries. In the vocational agriculture division 110 boys from Prospect, LaRue, Agosta, Green Camp, Morral, Waldo, Pleasant and Martel schools have made 340 different entries including 110 in livestock and the remainder in farm [illegible]. In the 4-H club exhibits in the 4-H club division 37 girls' clubs have made 540 clothing entries and 53 [illegible] entries. Four boys' clubs have entered 40 market and feeding pigs, 70 dairy calves and heifers, 70 sheep, eight vegetable gardening [illegible] projects, 10 beef cattle projects and three farm mechanics projects. The 27 4-H clubs of the county have a total enrollment of 400 members.

Red Cross on Grounds

The Red Cross first aid tent will be located this year about 100 feet from the northwest corner of the grandstand. Physicians have been asked to register at this tent as they enter the grounds in order that they might be summoned for emergency service. County public health nurses and volunteers will be in charge of the tent during the daytime and [illegible] will be at the tent at night.

Two purely educational exhibits were being completed today. One is the exhibit prepared by the Marion County Milk Producers association, Marion dairies and the city and county departments of health to show every step of the handling of milk from the time it is milked on the farm until it is delivered at the doorstep of the consumer. Four cows are being used in this exhibit along with a complete display of modern equipment including a model milk house, model dairy barn equipment, milk cooler, pasteurizing equipment and a bottling machine. Another educational exhibit has been arranged by Dr. N. [illegible], county health commissioner, and Eugene Willey, in charge of the rural sanitation project in Marion county that has resulted in construction of dozens of sanitary outhouses. This work will be resumed soon under the WPA, Mr. Willey said. Two model outhouses of a sanitary type approved by the federal government are shown on the grounds.

In the midway of concessions there are a merry-go-round, ferris wheel, mechanical walk and a dozen sideshows featuring such attractions as the Tinytown circus, Congress of Freaks, "Automatic Fun Palace" and Trixie, a shorthorn calf born last July on the Hardin county farm of Jacob Horn a mile north of Pfeiffer Station.

On Wednesday's program will be the convention of daredevils who will present a motorized rodeo in the afternoon in front of the grandstand. Shooting a man from a cannon is one of the features of this program, which will be given Wednesday only. Sixteen separate acts are billed. The Eagles band will furnish music tomorrow afternoon and evening, the follies will present their second night fair program and a fireworks display will be given afterward.

NEWS OF LONG DEATH SHOCKS WASHINGTON

was a genius. He had a mind extraordinary in both power and quickness."

Long was variously described as a champion for the toiling masses, a dramatic personality and a talented orator.

Comment included Rep. Binderup, Democrat of Nebraska: "In the death of Huey Long the nation lost a friend of humanity, a champion for the toiling masses, a peerless statesman who had the courage to stand up and fight alone for principles he deemed right and just."

Rep. Lea, Democrat, California: "Regardless of what any of us might think of his career, that method of terminating it must be condemned."

Labeled Forceful

Sen. Sheppard, Democrat of Texas: "Senator Long was one of the most forceful and picturesque characters in our political history."

Sen. D[illegible], Democrat of Ohio: "The most colorful member of the United States senate has passed. He could fight a majority or a minority equally well. He was brilliant and [illegible] only by [illegible]. His passing was a tragedy that every fair minded man must deplore."

His Aspirations Lauded

More power to him, former Senator Glenn of Illinois had exclaimed in Chicago when the fallen legislator in mid August announced his 1936 intentions.

These were not limited to the presidency. The Louisianan also had a [illegible] fielding of members of the house and senate at the election next year he predicted [illegible] in the present administration. Notable among these latter were Senators Joseph Robinson of Arkansas and Pat Harrison of Mississippi.

He won't be back, Long once said of Robinson. He was credited largely with the election of Mrs. Hattie Caraway to succeed her late husband in Arkansas two years ago.

Similarly at various times during his speeches in the senate he singled out Harrison and Josiah Bailey, Democrat of North Carolina, and less emphatically Sen. McKellar, Democrat of Tennessee, as men who would not be back.

He Packed Galleries

The popular appeal of his to the people might be in part measured by his tremendous drawing power in Washington and at other places where he spoke. He packed senate galleries as did no other speaker and the end of his talks occasioned a mass departure, the noise of which at times interrupted business for several minutes.

The show is over, so I'm going now, Vice President Garner once remarked as the exodus began at the end of one of Long's speeches.

The speeches repeatedly told how he would go up and down the land with his sound truck to fight Roosevelt next year. Continuously he hammered at cabinet members, more especially at Postmaster General Farley and Secretary Ickes, whom he styled the "Chinch Bug of Chicago."

Bitterly he accused Ickes and Relief Administrator Hopkins of employing FERA and PWA funds at the request of the administration to undermine him in Louisiana. He accused Farley of manipulating the award of public building contracts to friendly construction firms and laid before the senate a mass of data he said proved his charges. He was unable to bring about an investigation.

Early in his senatorial career he began building up a nationwide political organization.

Tells of Plan's Spread

"Clubs are springing up by the dozens every day," he often insisted to reporters and with an expansive wave of his hand would add "All over the country in every state."

Fr Coughlin Voices Regret

By The Associated Press

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 10—Fr. Charles E. Coughlin was quoted by the Albany Evening News today as saying Sen. Huey P. Long's death was "the most regrettable thing in modern history."

Fr. Coughlin learned of Long's death when he transferred from an early morning train to an automobile to be driven to Barrington, Mass.

"No matter how bitter or antagonistic may be a democracy such as ours, we should never have to resort to bullets to settle political disputes," the Michigan priest was quoted as saying.

"Our motto must always be ballots, not bullets."

[illegible] work?" Amazing he [illegible] reluctant admiration [illegible] of women en[illegible] own sake. "But [illegible] enjoy it himself?" "[illegible] work. Do you know I'm really beginning to [illegible]? I was errand girl [illegible] flunkey at first but [illegible] promoted to a desk [illegible] assignments. Charlotte [illegible] I keep it up I'll be [illegible] and coming from her [illegible] of praise [illegible] must be pretty good."

"She is. And she's a great deal more than that to me. Since I can't have you to [illegible] my [illegible] I'd rather have her."

He smiled, pleased at the idea that he and Charlotte might fill the same need. Then he put the question that he had sought her out to ask.

"And what about Barnes? No regrets?"

The brightness faded swiftly. "Yes," she said slowly. "A great many regrets."

He had dreaded that. "Why?"

"Why not? Because I've failed them all so miserably."

"But, my dear," his tone was impatient, "you'd be failing yourself otherwise."

"Perhaps. But is my life—any one life—so important as all that? And besides, I haven't really tried. I've simply run away from it. What right have I to refuse to go on—to ask for a divorce—until I've done my best to make it a success?"

"Emily," he demanded, "what have they been writing you?"

She smiled at the menace in his voice. "Nothing like that. But my father has broken a great deal lately, mother says, and it tears my heart to think of him."

It was utterly impossible, he thought bitterly, to keep some women—the Frances Feltons—from cheating. He dwelt momentarily upon the idea of murder.

"It isn't what they've said," she went on. "It's this beastly Puritan conscience of mine. Whenever I stop to think it begins to plague me."

"Does this mean," he asked harshly, "that you're thinking of going back?"

"I've thought of it all the time, but [illegible] mean that I'm going. I'm not [illegible] [illegible] I'm still holding on tight."

He patted her hand. "That's the spirit. You keep on holding on."

If he could prevent it he didn't intend to have his best cure ruined by outside interference — not until the cure was complete. Then if she went back she would be equal to the situation. He drove her home feeling that he had done a good evening's work.

When he had gone Emily went first to Charlotte's room to report on his visit. Charlotte put down the book she was reading and Emily saw that her eyes were troubled.

"There's a special delivery for you on the desk. It came while you were away."

Even before she opened the letter Emily knew that something was wrong, that her house of cards was about to be destroyed with a single blow. She read the letter quickly and Charlotte's apprehensive eyes never left her face.

She stood very still when she had finished it, [illegible] the letter in an unsteady hand. Charlotte could stand it no longer.

"Emily! What is it?"

Emily dropped into a chair and looked unseeingly at the floor. "Edwin is terribly ill. Pneumonia. He—seems to need me." She held the letter towards Charlotte.

Charlotte read it quickly, standing with one arm about Emily's unsteady shoulders. It was from Frances Felton and it was, Charlotte thought fleetingly, the most machiavellian document she had ever read.

"My dear Emily:

"I have hesitated a long time about writing this to you [illegible] Edwin is desperately ill with pneumonia. [illegible] Old Mrs. [illegible] died last week [illegible] [illegible] for several weeks [illegible] He [illegible] dreadfully for some time [illegible] too [illegible] Dr. Morgan thinks he has a chance to recover if he can be persuaded to make the effort [illegible] Of course this may not have any effect on your [illegible] I am not suggesting that it should. But [illegible] that you [illegible]

Your affectionate
Mother."

Emily laughed wildly. "How like Edwin to have gotten his pneumonia being pallbearer at a funeral. If he'd been sailing a boat or hunting—" the voice trailed off.

Charlotte's arm tightened. She knew all about hysterics. "Stop it! What do you want to do . . . or haven't you decided yet?"

Emily steadied. "There's no deciding about it. There's only one thing to do." Her voice was a lifeless monotone.

Charlotte said in a matter-of-fact voice, "Then I'll find out about trains and help you pack. I'll wire your mother as soon as I find out when you'll get there. Go over and lie down on my bed."

Emily shook her head. "I'd rather do something."

"All right. Run along and pack then. I'll be back in a minute."

There was a train at eight the next morning, Charlotte found, so they finished the packing and lay down to wait for morning.

"This had to come some time," Emily said wearily. "So perhaps it's just as well to get it over. If Edwin—doesn't die."

"He won't," Charlotte assured her, trying not to think what an ideal solution it would be if he did. "And you're right about its having to come. But it doesn't mean that you're beaten and that you have to stay. You can leave him again as easily as you did the first time."

"I wish I could be sure of that."

"You can. You can burn them all now because there's nothing to lose and everything to gain. You've got to promise me that you won't let your mother dictate to you. In this that you'll do what you think is right no matter what happens. Will you?"

Emily said doubtfully, "I'll try."

"She'll really admire you for it," Charlotte insisted, "because she'll know then that you've grown up. And if you do decide to stay the same thing holds. Women of her type have such a superstitious respect for matrimony that I don't believe she'll try very hard to run things. If she does, smile sweetly and say nothing and do what you intended to do all the time. You told me once that Judith Carroll managed her that way. Try it yourself."

Judith. The name belonged to another age, another world. But Judith had known how to manage people, even Frances Felton.

"It sounds simple," she sighed, "and I'll do my best."

"I know you will," Charlotte assured her. "Now try to sleep a little."

Dr. Morgan opened the door softly and glanced into the darkened room. Then he turned to Emily and nodded. "You can go in now."

Edwin was very straight and motionless in the narrow white bed. His eyes were closed and his breathing was shallow and very jerky. His face, she realized with a spasm of pain, was the face of a stranger, gaunt and shadowed, with grey, dark hollows where his cheeks should have been.

"Emily?" the voice was only a breath.

She leaned over and brushed the unshaven cheek lightly with her lips. "Yes, darling."

"Darling," Edwin murmured. "Will you call me that again some time?"

She fought back the stinging tears. "My darling as often as you like."

"And you'll—stay a while this time?"

"As long as you want me."

It was a pledge. Now she knew she could never break it.

"I'll always want you." The voice trailed off. "I think I'll go to sleep now."

She turned blindly towards the door and once outside found herself in Jeffrey's arms. She was at Edwin's end of the road now and never as long as she lived could she look towards the other end which led to freedom or to a shadowy figure that persisted in looking like the ghost of David Carroll.

Emily realizes tomorrow that her bridges are burned.

Boys Excited as They Take Ride on the River Ferry

THERE is nothing which so [illegible] quiets my nerves and at the same time so exhilarates me with a sense of well-being as the chance to drive along a seldom-frequented road. I do not care much what season of the year forms the setting for my journey. All I ask is sunshine and clear air, but of course a beautiful May day such as was vouchsafed us for the beginning of our trip to New Hampshire seemed to me a boon straight from heaven.

As we sped along the boulevards which make traveling in Long Island a delight there slipped imperceptibly from me the cares which infest the day. Of course the fear for my father's safety was something which could not be wholly put aside.

Optimism Triumphs

But subconsciously, optimism concerning his ability to conclude triumphantly the task which he had set for himself triumphed over my tremors, while my perplexities concerning Mary and Noel and my disquietude [illegible] with Roderick and Junior as objects retreated into the farthest recesses of my mind.

With the feeling of a schoolgirl facing an unexpected vacation I gave myself up to the joy of gliding rapidly through the fragrant countryside. Nor did my enjoyment lessen when the fields and groves along the road changed to village streets and then to the more crowded thoroughfare that leads the motorist through Flushing to the ferry road.

"What wonderful luck!" Katherine said as we drove up to the ferry, only to have the man in charge motion us to stop, shutting the gates between us and the car just preceding us in line.

"What do you mean?" I repeated incredulously. Then as realization dawned upon me I mentally echoed her words, adding the corollary, "We'll be the very first in line on the next boat."

"And Mary also just opposite. We'll have a marvelous view all the way over."

The prospect compensated me for the loss of time and the rather tedious wait until the next boat. When we were safely on the ferry with Mary's car and mine side by side at the front rail and Williams' car just behind mine I was startled to see Williams appear at the side of my car with Scott on a leash.

Boys Anxious For [illegible]

"The dog's getting restless," he said. "There aren't many people on this morning. I thought I'd let him jump around a bit."

Junior turned beseeching eyes up to mine.

"Aw, Mums," he said, his voice a prayer.

From the car beside us another pair of boyish eyes pleaded and Roderick also made his plea vocal.

"Aw, Auntie Madge."

I turned to William for decision. After all his would be the responsibility if the boys joined him and the dog at the rail.

"Are you willing to have them get out with you?" I asked.

"Sure thing," he answered. "If they'll mind what I say to them."

I leaned toward the other car.

"Come over here, Roderick," I said and the boy almost tore the door loose from its hinges in his impetuous rush to me. He jumped on our running board close to Junior and two pair of eyes filled with suspense in which however there was a distinct leaven of hope fixed themselves upon mine.

Promise Is Given

"If you two boys will promise me on your honor that you will stick close to Mr. Williams and do exactly what he tells you, you may get out of the car and stand by the railing with him. Do you promise?"

They snapped to attention and went through an elaborate system of their own which included the "crossing of their hearts" while they intoned impassionately "Honest Injun!"

"Very well," I said, nodding to Williams. "If you can manage to get away from the car without [illegible] in your [illegible] you may join Mr. Williams and Scottie."

Mary Joins Boys

They answered my quizzical smile with a sheepish grin. Then they climbed down from the car with a sedateness remarkable in them and ranged themselves alongside Williams and the dog at the rail.

Mary descended from her car and crossed to us.

"Mind if I go too?" she asked. "I haven't leaned over a ferry rail since my wedding trip."

"Must?" I repeated, smiling at her. "After all you are not Junior's age [illegible] you know."

"I'm not so sure," she threw back over her shoulder as she joined the others, stooping to pet the collie that adores her.

"I'm not so sure either," Katherine murmured softly from the seat behind me, and I nodded, sharing her evident conviction that the charming, volatile, highly strung girl whom we both love had not yet been tamed, chained or even ripened by marriage or the [illegible] of tragedy overhanging her. She was still the spirited colt, [illegible] halter.

Four N. C. O. Grid Teams Swing Into Action This Wee

HARDING, ASHLAND FACE TOUGHEST FOES IN OPENING CONTESTS

Mansfield and Galion Teams To Get More Practice Before Openers

BY CHUCK DENSMORE
Sports Editor The Star

WARFARE for North Central Ohio conference football teams will get under way this week with all but two elevens swinging into action.

Opening contests on the schedules of Harding, Ashland, Mt Vernon and Shelby High schools. Galion and Mansfield will get in another week of drill before opening their 1935 campaigns. Friday games have the preference with N C O teams this week, the Harding contest with Tiffin Calvert here being the only game listed for Saturday afternoon.

Games under the lights are scheduled for Friday night at Bucyrus and Shelby, while Ashland will go to Elyria to play under the pretentious Elyria High school floodlight system. The Bucyrus will entertain Delaware Willis High school under the lighting plant at the Crawford county seat.

On New Field

Mt Gilead will travel to Shelby to give the Whippets their first taste of gridiron competition this year. Marysville High school will play host to Mt Vernon, new member of the scholastic athletic conference. And on Saturday Our Boys will meet Tiffin Calvert on a new athletic field and under the guidance of a new football mentor.

The race for the conference football championship captured last year by a great Ashland team will not get started until the first Saturday in October. Harding will test the newcomer Mt Vernon here in its first N C O game while Mansfield will meet Ashland at Mansfield and Shelby will entertain Galion.

Tiffin Calvert Tough

Of the teams moving into action this week Marion and Ashland will face the severest tests. Tiffin Calvert has an abundance of lettermen back and strong backfield reinforcements for Banks and Marlous lost through graduation. Banks will be a hard man to replace, ranking as one of the best backs in the state last season.

The scrappy Tiffin combination has not had any more practice than the Presidents and will encounter a different spirit on the Harding field. Ashland is biting off a big chunk in taking on Elyria in its own stamping grounds.

The 1934 N C O champions will also be performing under fire for its new coach John "Red" Longley for the first time. Longley replaces Rosie Starn who was appointed head football coach at Kent State university last fall. Longley came to Ashland from Logan where he turned out fast traveling fighting teams.

Ashland's new skipper has a large squad which he must whip into shape to match the strongest opponent of the season. The Ashland team will take the field this year in new uniforms of black whipcord pants with orange inserts, black jerseys with orange sleeves and numerals and black stockings with orange stripes.

Ashland Has Tough Sked

The champions have the toughest schedule in the league, going through a 10-game schedule without a break. Galion has the lightest schedule of any league school but a heavier team this year. Shelby will have little trouble with Mt Gilead. It is believed although the Morrow county boys may hand out some surprises.

Just what Mt Vernon can do this year will be seen in the Union county seat Friday afternoon. Marysville has been handicapped by the lack of good material, graduation taking away many of its experienced gridders. Coach Kingamore has strengthened the Marysville team by shifting some of his experienced men.

The Marysville coach believes his team will be somewhat stronger although the lack of reserve strength darkens his optimism. The 1935 team is heavier and ready to move at top speed. Coach Carl Cramer of Harding will have an opportunity this week to size up every team on his schedule this season except Mansfield and Galion.

Shelby has eight lettermen back and a large group of experienced players. The Whippets have four games under the lights and would like to play the Harding game Nov 16 at night if weather would permit. Harding's only night game is with Findlay.

LITTLE DRIVES OFF IN AMATEUR

Punching Replaces Holds On Wrestling Program

Referee and Promoter Suffer as Ex-Fighters "Break Loose", Woods Gets Decision

IF punches were stones what a rock pile would have been heaped around the ring at the weekly wrestling program last night in the Steam Shovel gymnasium.

Two hour and a half matches were scheduled as a wrestling but no one would call them that, not even Promoter Harley Lewis who received one of the many blows in the solar plexis when he entered the ring to aid in stopping a free-for-all which followed the close of the second match.

Certainly Referee Tom Temple wouldn't term last night's action as wrestling matches after receiving two hefty blows and landing a few himself. Punching must have been in the air last night. Fans however were too busy watching punches to take a sock at their neighbor.

Temple Wins

Oh yes, Prince Mihalikas (or Referee Temple) won the first match of the evening, a 20-minute opener. Al Billt won over Bad Boy Brown and the last fracas was finally awarded to Joe Woods after Jack Louis had taken a second fall from the Californian.

Decisions meant little last night as every one wrapped up interest in the blows exchanged. A good appetizer of what was to follow came in the preliminary when Referee Temple ended the bout with a right to Speedy Schaffer's jaw after 12 minutes of rough play.

Schaffer, who has been kidding officials lately with his yelling "get away," climaxed his grunting last night by landing a sock on Temple's jaw which floored the referee. Temple came back to land one that kept Schaffer down for a longer time.

Al Billt of Nebraska gave a little variation to the Lewis-Kelly Socks program by throwing Bad Boy Brown from the ring. Brown was counted out and was unable to return to the mat for the second fall. Billt showed fans tricky ways of spilling a man. He started the aerial performance by fancy shoulder spills which had Brown groggy and finished the exhibition with his shoulder whip.

This whip sends a man against the ropes with so much force he bounds back clear across the ring, or as Brown did through the ropes with such force that his chances of returning are few. Brown took three heavy slams before he cleared the ropes and landed on his face by the timer's desk.

Joe Woods survived blows long enough to fasten a surfboard on Louis. This damaging hold gave him the first fall in 10 minutes. Louis landed punches to take the second fall in four minutes, topping the activity with a body press.

Action came fast and furious in the final fall. Louis attempted to tie up Woods to land some blows but Joe succeeded in punishing Louis with a headlock. Louis later tied up Woods with a toe hold but Joe survived. After a few punches both matmen confined their work to punching.

"Added Attraction"

Louis finished the attack by downing Woods near the ropes. Louis wouldn't stop punching after getting the decision—and Woods got mad. He shook off three men to go after Louis in an added attraction and Temple finally awarded the match to the ex-fighter for Louis' roughness.

Before Temple gave the decision to Woods the latter sent the referee to the canvass with a heavy blow to the jaw. A decision for Woods was one way of quieting a display of temper Joe has never shown here before.

Local promoters are attempting to arrange a 10-round fight with gloves for the two. Louis still competes in the boxing game while Woods reached the top only to withdraw in favor of the mat sport.

CUBS LIGHT FUSE AND BLOW SELVES NEARER TO WORLD SERIES

Chicago Wins Two as Cards Lose, One Game Lead Now for Frisch

By ANDY CLARKE
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Cubs have lit the fuse and who knows but what they will rocket right out through the roof right into the blue heaven of the World Series?

Most of the baseball seers who forgot Charley Grimm and his boys in their early season calculations are making ready to take to the storm cellars. In fourth place nine games behind the Giants on July 6 the Cubs today are two games ahead of the balloon that busted and only one game behind the leading Cardinals.

Rookie Connects

The Cubs ran their current winning streak up to six straight games yesterday, defeating the Boston Braves 5-1 and 2-1 as the world champions were dropping one to the Phillies.

Tex Carleton allowed only four hits in the first game and Larry French came back to take a decision from Fred Frankhouse in a mound duel in the nightcap. They ran the Braves losing streak to nine straight.

Carleton fanned eight, walked none and allowed only two runners to get past first base. One of them was Elbert Fletcher, a rookie, who hit for the circuit.

After a pass and three singles scored the Cubs two runs in the first inning of the second game Frankhouse allowed but three Chicagoans to get on base.

Manager Frankie Frisch had a hitless birthday and he probably would have swapped all the candles on his cake for a reversal of that 4-3 defeat the Phillies hung on his team.

Philadelphia hopped on Phil Collins for three runs in the fifth inning and scored the deciding tally off Ed Heusser in the eighth. Curt Davis pitched seven-hit ball.

Before the game the Gashouse Gang went a little sissy, presenting Frisch with a bouquet of flowers and then singing a birthday song as Dizzy Dean tossed aside the bat for the baton.

The Detroit Tigers regained their 8½ game lead in the American league, coming from behind to down the Washington Senators 5 to 4. Rain and darkness limited the game to seven innings.

The Yankees defeated Cleveland 5 to 3. Jack Saltzgaver connected with four hits for a perfect day at bat. He drove in three runs, one with a double and two with a homer.

The St Louis Browns, fresh from the cellar themselves, had no compassion for the team that placed them there. The Athletics went down 5-1 before the pitching of Earl Caldwell, righthander from San Antonio in the Texas League.

FOREST DROPS GAME TO LIMA TEAM, 3-2

Floyd West Loses Second Tilt of Season, Runs Strike-outs to 191.

Special to The Star

FOREST, Sept 10—Lima Pirates put a blemish on Forest Merchants baseball record Sunday afternoon in the form of a 3 to 2 victory. It marked Floyd West's second setback against a dozen decisions this season. He allowed Lima six hits and fanned six to run his strike-out string to 191 for the 14 games in which he has worked. He has allowed 60 hits and seven runs.

Errors were numerous and costly, Lima made four and Forest five. Holmes, third baseman, was hitting star for Forest, making two hits in four times at bat. England, right fielder, came through with two in five and Stokes, Lima shortstop, collected four in four for a perfect day.

Forest scored a run in the third and one in the fifth. Lima registered a brace of tallies in the sixth largely through errors and won the game in the eighth. Forest made eight hits off Mertz of Lima. Lafayette will play Forest at Meyer field next Sunday. Each holds a verdict over the other this season.

Undertaker Will Try To Bury Lawson Little

British and American Amateur Golf Champ Has Narrow Escape from Young Trapshooter

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O, Sept 10 — Bill Lain of Chicago, an undertaker in white today undertook the big job of burying the national amateur golf championship hopes of Lawson Little—a task that 24 other men in England and America have failed to accomplish during the last two years.

One of Chicago's leading amateurs, Lain, a tall blonde with a flair for white togery, challenged the march of the Human Siege Gun from San Francisco in the second round but his hope of success in his venture was rather gloomy.

Makes Big Rally

Little was believed to have been shot down and buried in his first 18 hole start over the soggy clay turf terrain of the Cleveland country club yesterday but he proved to be a lively corpse that could rise again and still win.

Three down through five holes against Rufus King, 19 year old trapshooter from Wichita Falls, Tex, Little conclusively proved his class and became a greater favorite than ever over his field by coming back to crush his youthful opponent 3 and 1.

It was the hardest fight he has had to wage since he started out on his great march—a march that has won the British amateur twice in succession and the American amateur once—but he had the fight and the weapons to repel the attack of the kid who dazzled him by scoring four birdies in succession over the first five holes.

Little down only once before in 23 matches and that time only one hole behind, was probably more amazed yesterday than was the black haired kid who won his first renown five years ago by winning the Grand American Handicap trapshooting blue ribbon title event.

Putting like a wizard and banging dead niblicks against the pin he halved the first two holes with par and a birdie and then shot 3-3-2, three straight birdies to win as many holes. It took a 20 foot putt for Little to stop him on the 15th but he stopped his kid challenger so completely that he squared the match on the ninth hole, went ahead with a bold iron shot and a beautiful explosion on the 585 yard 12th and never was headed thereafter although King tossed away chances to win holes by overputting the fast drying greens.

Little, two under par for the front nine, finished up even with par for 17 holes, losing strokes on the way back to reckless shots that nestled in traps.

Lain survived by defeating Bayard Mitchell of Pinehurst, N C, 3 and 2. He was [illegible] over par for 16 holes except in the defeat of Francis Ouimet, twice champion, who was eliminated by Levi Yoder, an ex-Good cafeteria worker of Washington, D C, the big field went through 75 opening matches yesterday, most of them in a driving rain without a distinct upset.

BITSY GRANT HANDS BUDGE SURPRISE, BUT RAIN HALTS MATCH

"Giant Killer" All But Overwhelms Wimbledon's Red Headed Sensation

By The Associated Press

FOREST HILLS, N Y, Sept 10 —Bitsy Grant was back in his accustomed role of Giant Killer of American tennis today.

For weeks the sports pages carried columns about the Wimbledon achievement of Donald Budge, the California youngster whose red hair flashes like a fireman's helmet. Budge's victories over Bunny Austin and Baron Gottfried Von Cramm earned him a rating among the five leading players of the world.

They squared off across the net yesterday in a quarter-final match of the 54th men's national singles championship. This time Budge was the red-hot favorite. He was the one American player conceded a chance to dethrone Fred Perry of England.

Budge came back from England with the sobriquet "The New Darling of Wimbledon." Against Grant who was a darling in distress Budge was saved only by a drenching downpour of rain which interrupted the contest at the time Grant was leading 6-4, 6-4, 2-1.

After the first three games Budge's spirit appeared to be broken. Grant handled his famous cannon ball service with impressive ease. This disconcerted Budge no little as Grant broke him twice in the first three games.

More trouble than that however were Grant's soft spinning forehand and backhand shots. Budge seldom could get set to slam across thunderbolt returns and had to content himself with keeping the ball in play and trying to place it out of the reach of his small adversary, but Grant was virtually "all over the lot."

They are scheduled to resume their match at 2 p m.

GAME MAY DECIDE LITTLE WORLD SERIES

Silk Mill Can Take Title by Turning Back Lee Street Team Tonight

Clear skies this morning gave city softball commission officials bright hopes for a large crowd for the sixth game of the Little World Series tonight at 8 o'clock under the lights at Lincoln park

Lee Street will meet the Silk Mill team for the second time in the championship tournament for city recreation ball supremacy. Unless Lee Street can turn back the Silk Mill team the Weavers will take the title tonight. Silk Mill won the first game between the two teams 5 to 2.

Tonight's game is expected to be a pitcher's battle between the veteran Benny Crabtree who has pitched three nice games for the Lee Street team and Maynard Snyder Silk Mill's hurling hurler. Snyder pitched his team and the Forest Lawn nine into the series and can climax a successful season by capturing the city championship tonight.

An injury to Van Scoy, Silk Mill outfielder, will send Woody Harper into the lineup tonight. Van Scoy was hurt in the series last week.

Probable lineups:

Lee Street	Silk Mill
Braham ss	Walt Baldauf 2b
K. Conkle 2b	Sawyer ss
Anspaugh cf	Conroy c
Richards lf	Snyder p
Marshall 3b	Robbins rf
Lashey rf	W. Harper lf

Under the leadership of W. P. Cass, superintendent of the Sunday school, the workers of the school will meet to discuss plans for the school year which will begin Oct 6.

At the same time the young people's council will meet with Rev. James O. Dodd to arrange a coordinated program of study, missionary education, leadership training and recreation for the new year.

Rev. Dodd announced today that the success of the church's program for the year will depend largely upon the way in which the Wednesday night meeting is supported. He urged a large attendance.

MOTORIST ENTERS NOT GUILTY PLEA

A plea of not guilty to a charge of reckless driving was accepted in municipal court today for Richard Huston, 26, who gave his address as 156 Park boulevard. Judge W. R. Martin set his hearing for Sept. 27 and he was released on $50 bond.

The not guilty plea was entered by Huston's attorney. The charge against him grew out of an automobile accident on North Main street about a week ago. MILLERS ALL BUT CLINCH A. A. TITLE

Columbus Spoils Indianapolis' Chances by 5 to 4 Victory

CHICAGO Sept 10—Donie Bush's Minneapolis Millers today were on the verge of deciding how to spend their share of the $5,000 bonus pot for winning the American Association championship.

With the season only six days from the finish the Millers moved over to Milwaukee for a series, leading Indianapolis by six full games. Closing their last home stand of the campaign yesterday they gave the fans a treat by blasting out 15 hits to wallop Kansas City 10 to 4. The Indians dropped a game farther back by losing a 5 to 4 decision to Columbus in a night game.

Indianapolis, however, appeared certain of the second place bonus money of $8,000. Kansas City and Columbus were still involved in the hottest kind of a struggle to decide which gets the $1,000 money for third place or the $[illegible] pot for fourth place.

The Millers clinched yesterday's triumph with a five-run drive in the sixth, the feature of which was Johnny Gill's 42nd homer with two men on. Walter Tauscher, who held the Blues scoreless during the last five innings, was credited with his eighteenth victory of the season.

Columbus grabbed a 5 to 0 lead in the first five innings but had to call in two relief hurlers to halt the Indians in the later frames. Milwaukee bunched 14 hits off Gene Trow and Spike Hunter for a 13 to 7 victory over St. Paul in the other game. Rain prevented a doubleheader between Louisville and Toledo.
